

Friday, October 7.

1. Our team has accomplished various tasks. We designed the layout of our website, what our style format should be and who will handle what tasks for designing and coding that section of the website.
2. What our team plans to accomplish for the following week is to begin coding parts of the website. We plan to begin coding the parts we believe to be simple, to get a better view of how we will tackle the bigger sections of the project.
3. Some obstacles which might prevent us from moving forward with our project is our ability to fully understand the language we are using. We are still puzzled as how to store users and their passwords for our website.
4. As far as attendance goes, everyone in the group was able to attend this week's meetings.
5. We seem to be on schedule with our project plan. We may have a minor setback in regards with our experience in designing and making websites with a database for users, but we believe to be able to overcome this obstacle.
